Strategy

Strategy Technique ISO

In order to form a good speech for IELTS Speaking Part 2, test takers should look into the technique ISO:

- Introduction: Start your talk with a sentence that can introduce the topic in a direct way. Then you should create some background information before getting to the main content by talking about who the person is and when or where you know that person.
- Story: The most important part is to describe the person and talk about what that person do/did or what you do/did with the person being described.
- Opinion: After telling the story about that person, you should add topic-related lesson or evaluation by talking about what achievement that person accomplished or how you feel about that person.

Introduction

Direct answer:

- Today, I'm going/gonna to talk about ...
- When it comes to..., the first person that comes/springs to my mind is ...
- Nobody compares to ...

Exam tip

Exam tip Using connectives & discourse markers

- Connectives are words or phrases that connect and relate sentences and ideas. They help to build the logical flow of ideas as they signal the relationship between sentences and ideas.
- Discourse markers are words or phrases which are used to connect, organise and manage what speakers say or write or to express their attitude.
- Connectives and discourse markers are important in exam settings because they help structure your responses and make your points clearer and more persuasive.
